Dear Mr. Weisberg:

Reference is made to the studies I am making in connection with your major work on contemporary history; particularly volumns I and II of it.

It would please you to learn that I have decided to confine my I.C.S. course to the field of political journalism - a line from my text book brought about this decision - "The writer has a responsibility to be true to himself, to his readers and to his age!" In this regard, having been in touch with prof. Morris, sometime ago, I am wondering why your third volumn doesn't mention the historic part played by Geo. de Mohrenschildt and feel that no story on American events are complete with out giving credit to his contribution.

Tried to obtain your volumn II, of Contemporary History, but sorry to say that it's unavailable at this time, have even tried the Wash. state library that lends books to students here at McNeil Island, but it's not available there either. We are able to purchase books from the publishing house would it be possible to obtain a price list?

Any information, or advice you would be willing to give me as a student, would be greatly appreciated.

Sincerly;

Jack Melody
